WELCOME TO Pikeville

The City of Pikeville is a progressive city that, through years of strategic planning, has adapted to major economic changes. The City leaders and the community have their eyes set on the future by bringing new opportunities to the area.

Pikeville was named City Government of the Year by the Kentucky League of Cities in 2018. Pikeville received this honor for its remarkable work in the area of strategic economic development.

Historically, the coal industry has been the driving economic force in Eastern Kentucky. When this industry faced obstacles, thousands of miners and associated workers were impacted.

City leaders made a courageous decision to develop the Kentucky Enterprise Industrial Park, repurposing 400 acres of abandoned mine property. All the while, the city continued to develop its downtown core, support local businesses, recruit new retail and hotels and work with the University of Pikeville and Pikeville Medical Center. The City continues to enhance infrastructure, broadband and make quality of life enhancements.

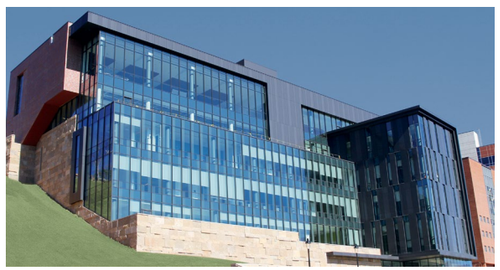
The City of Pikeville welcomes SilverLiner, owned by Chris Tomlinson of Stanville, Kentucky, to the Kentucky Enterprise Industrial Park. Tomlinson is an established business owner who chose Pikeville over other out-of-state locations because he had a desire to create jobs for out of place coal miners in eastern Kentucky.

SILVERLINER

SilverLiner is a manufacturing and assembly plant producing different types of transport vehicles, chiefly, tanker trucks to service several industries including petroleum, vacuum, septic, fire, utilities and government. The company projects a workforce of 60 employees by early 2019 and with planned expansions over the next several years, they expect to add an additional 300-400 workers.

Three high profile companies are now coming to Pikeville -SilverLiner and EnerBlu - that will provide more than 1,000 jobs to Eastern Kentucky. Several small IT start-ups are working to retrain miners for that industry and the list goes on.

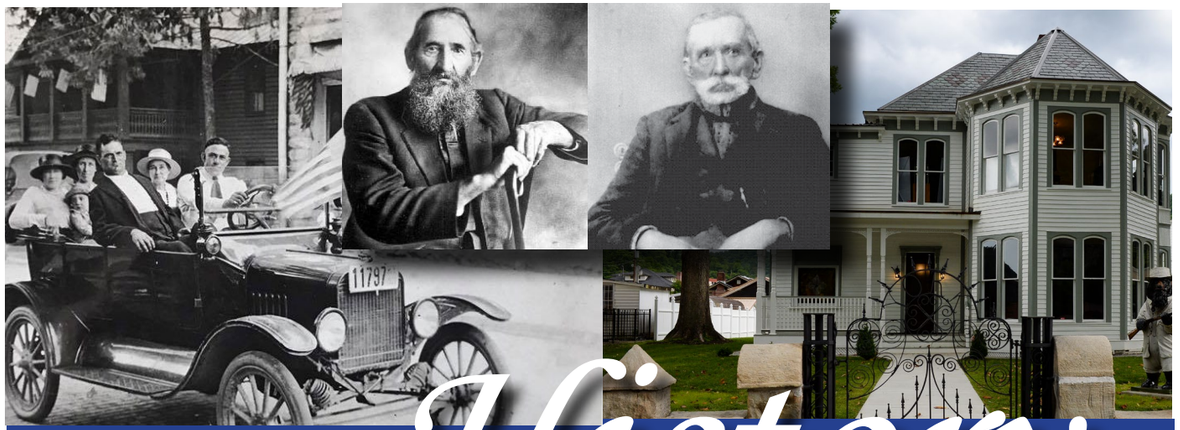
UNIVERSITY OF PIKEVILLE 1889



Now a regional hub, the city has helped bring billions of dollars to the area, all of which is changing the trajectory of Eastern Kentucky.

Pikeville has an unsurpassed quality of life. CNBC recently ranked Kentucky number one in the nation for the lowest cost of living and Pikeville has been twice voted as one of the best small towns in America.

Pikeville is surrounded by picturesque mountains that are perfect for outdoor adventures. The area is deeply ingrained with rich history that includes the famous Hatfield-McCoy Feud. Pikeville's strength lies in blending our traditional families with those who have been invited to call us their home.



PIKEVILLE History

The earliest explorers in Pike County may have crossed from Virginia through Pound Gap during the mid 1700s. At David, Kentucky, there is a plaque which marks the location where Daniel Boone spent the winter of 1767. His route to reach David brought him through the Breaks Interstate Park, down the Russell Fork, to the Levisa Fork and along the Big Sandy River, past the current Pikeville City Park.

Historical Time Line

1824 - The town of Pikeville, originally known as Piketon is established.

1861- Confederate Infantry establish an encampment in Pikeville and raise the Confederate flag over the Pike County Courthouse. Union Gen. William T. Sherman sends troops to drive them out.

1862- Col. James Garfield moves into Pikeville and establishes an encampment of 3,000 men in the present City Park. Troops camp at the current location of the University of Pikeville. Col. Garfield is appointed Brigadier General by President Abraham Lincoln and sworn in at the present City Park.

1863 - Devil Anse Hatfield forms a guerrilla band. Raids and thefts follow between McCoys and Hatfields.

1876- Col. John Dils deeds property on Main Street to his daughter, Augusta Dils York and her husband, attorney James York, to build a house. The York House is still standing today at 223 Main Street.

1879 - Effie Waller Smith is born in the Chloe Creek community of Pikeville. The daughter of a former slave, she publishes three volumes of poetry in the early 20th century.

1889 - Pikeville Collegiate Institute holds its first class in a newly constructed brick building. The bricks were made from riverbank clay and fired on site. The building is now the Coleman College of Business located on College Street.

1890 - Ellison "Cotton Top" Mounts is executed for Alifair McCoy's murder. He was hung at the present day location of the University of Pikeville Armington Learning Center on Kentucky Avenue.

1905 - The first steam locomotive arrives in Pikeville, traveling from Ashland and pulling cars filled with local officials and dignitaries.

1912 - R.T. Greer builds an herb and root warehouse at the corner of Hambley Boulevard and Auxier Avenue. He ships locally harvested ginseng and blood root world wide.

1929- The last steamboat trip to Pikeville occurs on the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River.

1934 - First Lady Eleanor Roosevelt arrives in Pikeville via train and greets crowds waiting at the train station that is still standing on Hambley Blvd.

1957 - A disastrous flood hits Pikeville. The town is almost entirely under water, which stood three feet deep or more in Main Street businesses and homes and as much as nine feet deep in stores on other streets. More than 250 houses were destroyed in Pikeville and the immediate area.

1973- Mayor William Hambley begins the Pikeville Cut Through Project, designed to prevent the City from flooding and open new areas for development.

1995 - Pikeville politician Paul E. Patton is elected the 59th Governor of Kentucky.

1997 - Pikeville College School of Osteopathic Medicine is established in Pikeville.

2016 - The Kentucky Enterprise Industrial Park at Marion's Branch is built attracting major manufacturing plants including SilverLiner and EnerBlu.

Attractions

DUELING BARRELS BREWERY & DISTILLERY

Founders Pearse and Deirdre Lyons have long felt a special kinship with the mountains, craftsmanship and hardworking people of Appalachia. After immigrating to Kentucky from Ireland, they developed an affinity for the region because of the many ways it reminds them of home.

Stories that move mountains live here, including the legendary Hatfield-McCoy Feud, the dawn of Bluegrass music and starry nights spent making moonshine along the Tug Fork stream. Dueling Barrels welcomes you to explore this rich history and culture through the lens of brewing and distilling.
Tours cost $12 per person and guests over the age of 21 years of age will receive four tasting tokens to use in both the brewery and/or distillery.

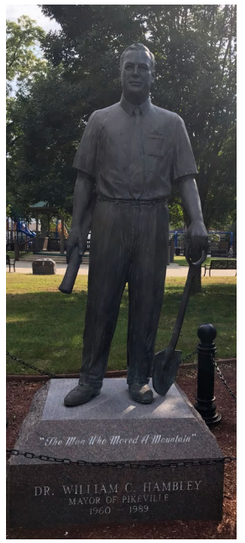
PIKEVILLE CUT-THROUGH

The Pikeville Cut-Through Project is the second largest earth removal project in the United States history. Spearheaded by former Mayor William C. Hambley, the Pikeville Cut-Through Project officially began in November 1973 with the purpose of relieving the flooding that the City of Pikeville regularly experienced. The Cut-Through Project also provided Pikeville with more room for development, due to the relocation of the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River away from downtown, and relieved the City of congestion caused by the railroad and the three major highways that passed through it.



The Cut-Through Project was completed in four phases spanning 14 years and costing approximately $80 million. A total of 18 million cubic yards of earth were moved during the entire project, which filled the empty riverbed, creating a total of 400 acres of usable land for Pikeville City's expansion. A monument was erected in the Pikeville City Park as a tribute to the man who moved a mountain, Mayor William C. Hambley.

The Cut-Through Overlook is located on Bob Amos Drive on top of the mountain. Visitors can expect more than just an astonishing view when visiting the overlook. It is surrounded by beautiful scenery and the Bob Amos Park, which features a rubberized oval walking track, hiking trail, horseshoe arena area, tennis courts, basketball courts, soccer fields, baseball fields, and a YMCA. Hatfield and McCoy River Trails is also located near the overlook and on weekends features canoing, paddle boating, tubing, and a paintball field.

EAST KENTUCKY EXPO CENTER

From family-friendly shows such as Disney on Ice to thrilling rodeos, concerts and more, the East Kentucky Expo Center provides a spectacular variety of entertainment for the young and the young at heart. This multi-purpose facility regularly features critically acclaimed entertainment, such as Carrie Underwood, Darius Rucker, Larry the Cable Guy, The Band Perry, Brantley Gilbert, Lynyrd Skynyrd, WWE and TNA wrestling, and many more. The East Kentucky Expo Center is also home to a wide variety of sporting events, such as BMX, mixed martial arts, monster trucks and the NAIA basketball National Champions, the University of Pikeville Bears.

The facility also features 5,000 feet of ballroom space, several conference rooms, a kitchen and an outdoor street-side stage. Professional catering is available.

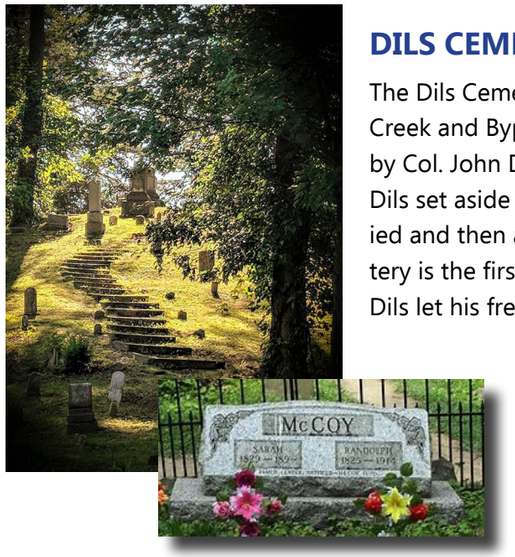
HATFIELD & MCCOY SITES



DILS CEMETERY

The Dils Cemetery is located at 132 Chloe Road, at the mouth of Chloe Creek and Bypass Road in Pikeville. The property was purchased in 1871 by Col. John Dils and already contained the graves of the Syck family. Col. Dils set aside a space on the top of the knoll for his own family to be buried and then allowed the burials of others in the community. The cemetery is the first known cemetery in Eastern Kentucky to be integrated. Col. Dils let his freed slaves and their descendants be buried in the cemetery.

The Dils Cemetery is listed on the National Register of Historic Places as part of the Hatfield-McCoy Feud Historic District. Buried in the cemetery are: Randolph McCoy, the head of the McCoy clan, his wife, Sarah, and their daughter, Roseanna, who ran away with Johnse Hatfield.

MCCOY HOUSE

The Randolph and Sarah McCoy home is located at the corner of Main Street and Scott Avenue. The McCoys moved to this location after the burning of their home at Blackberry on January 1, 1888. Randolph operated a ferry across the Big Sandy River near this location.

PERRY CLINE GRAVE SITE

Perry Cline served as Sheriff of Pike County for four years during the time of the Hatfield-McCoy Feud. Later in his life, he became an attorney and served as legal council for both the Hatfields and the McCoys. His grave and that of his wife are located on Mount Martha Drive in Pikeville.

Since 1964 audiences have enjoyed Jenny Wiley Theatre's staging of classic Broadway musicals featuring a live orchestra. JWT has an indoor main-stage theatre in Pikeville and an amphitheater located in Prestonsburg, KY, nestled in the beautiful natural surroundings of the Jenny Wiley State Resort Park. In addition, the JWT Footlights Theatre offers young performers an opportunity to learn, exercise and grow their creative talents. Audition ages range from 7 to 17.

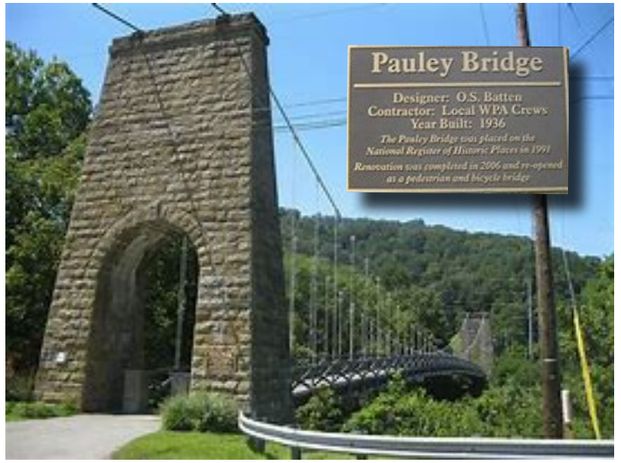
PAULEY BRIDGE

The Pauley Bridge is a classic bridge that provides a serene view of the the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River, and is a popular spot for visitors to get a photo or take a short stroll. The Pauley Bridge was built by workers from the Works Progress Administration. Construction on the bridge began in 1936 and was completed in 1940. The wooden bridge is now closed to vehicular traffic, but is still intact.



The stone towers on each end of the bridge are constructed of sandstone. It is the only WPA bridge with sandstone in the construction. In 1992, the National Register of Historic Places listed the bridge in its register. The bridge is located on North Mayo Trail in Pikeville.

Festivals

HILLBILLY DAYS

This year marks 43 years of Shriners helping children with the Hillbilly Days festival, scheduled for April 11, 12 and 13, 2019.

Hillbilly Days was founded in 1977 by two Shriners from Pikeville, Howard "Dirty Ears" Stratton and "Shady" Grady Kinney, members of Hillbilly Clan Outhouse No. 2, as a means to raise money for Shriners Hospitals for Children.

Over 100,000 people come once a year to experience this three-day family event. Shriners travel from all over the United States and Canada to Pikeville to roam the streets and raise money for children treated at the Shriners' Hospitals. The festival features food, crafts, a carnival, a parade and music throughout the town. Come and see why Hillbilly Days has become one of Kentucky's top festivals.

HATFIELD MCCOY HERITAGE DAYS

Hatfield McCoy Heritage Days will be celebrated September 20, 21 and 22, 2019, with family descendants and friends gathering to celebrate their heritage and the history of the area. This festival is a joint venture with Pikeville and Pike County Tourism. Activities include music, entertainment, feud site tours, a theatrical performance of the feud, the Ruff, Tough, Cuss - a three-day obstacle and running event, and a Sunday church service.

The best seats to see fireworks on July 4th are anywhere in downtown Pikeville! Celebration features bouncy houses for the kids, a picnic with the Mayor, a band in the park and of course, spectacular fireworks beginning around 9:30 pm. In case of rain, the fireworks will be moved to another day.

BLUE Raven RESTAURANT & PUB

Chef Matt Corbin, Blue Raven Restaurant & Pub

By Sean Patrick Hill
The article first appeared in the May 2014 issue of Kentucky Monthly

Matt Corbin, chef and owner of Pikeville's The Blue Raven Restaurant and Pub dubs his food "pub-style Appalachian cuisine" comprising "Kentucky and Appalachian staples with unique twists that showcase quality ingredients and food preparation."

It's not hard to see The Blue Raven as the family eatery reborn as well as a classic piece of Appalachia retrofitted and repurposed for a contemporary crowd, not only visitors to the area hiking the Pine Mountain Trail or whitewater rafting in Breaks Interstate Park but also the coal-country locals.

Corbin, who attended the University of Kentucky and honed his culinary skills at Lexington's Sullivan University, opened The Blue Raven in spring 2012 on Pikeville's Main Street, in the very county in which he was born. Housed in the old Wells Motor Building, Corbin's restaurant is the newest addition to Kentucky's burgeoning farm-to-table restaurant culture.

Corbin uses homegrown Kentucky food from outfits including HF Farms in Prestonsburg, and Weisenberger Mill in Midway, and uses local farmers' goods whenever possible. He also is looking ahead to using his own homegrown produce. "I am in the process of ramping up our farm to provide all of our herbs, honey and some other produce," Corbin explains. "We have recently started growing hydroponic micro-greens. We love to feature Kentucky brewers as well."

Aside from using local products, Corbin also plans to build a high tunnel greenhouse on his family's farm, which would allow him to grow his produce earlier in the spring and later in the fall. In addition to his micro-greens and beekeeping, he hopes also to produce all his eggs, and cucumbers for house pickles. For now, The Blue Raven is becoming an institution in Pikeville.

Pikeville, like much of eastern Kentucky, like Corbin, is transforming something traditional into something new and exciting. With the Hatfields and McCoys at rest now, the restaurant's only vestige of them is the old decanter statue of Randolph McCoy leering over the bar. Basketball is the only rivalry you'll see here now, though the idea of family—a deep seam of ore here—certainly thrives.
